August 2005

Located in central Montana, Petroleum County is Montana's least populated county with 492 residents, according to the 2004 U.S. Census Bureau estimates. Winnett, the county seat, is the state's 109th largest city with a population of 184, according to the 2004 U.S. Census Bureau estimates.

The 2004 Employment by Industry table on the inside, shows government is the largest employer and accounts for nearly two-thirds of the total employment. Agriculture is important to the area's economy. The Summary of Major Occupational Categories By Gender (see the table inside) shows nearly 50 percent of the major occupations in Petroleum County relate to the farming industry. The three sheep and goat farms in Petroleum County (see table on the right) have earned the county the ranking of 29th in Montana for value of sales for sheep and goats, according to the 2002 Census of Agriculture.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, median income for Petroleum County households in 2002 was $22,217, compared to Montana's median income of $34,105 for the same year. Median income addresses the per household income in the county (no matter how many people live in the home); per capita income (inside table) is total income in the county divided by the number of people in the county.

According to the Montana Almanac, by authors Andrea Merrill and Judy Jacobson, the county was established in 1925 and its name was inspired by petroleum production. Petroleum County was the last Montana county established. Winnett was named for Walter John Winnett, a local cattle owner, freighter, and store owner, according to the authors.
